Dear Sir or Madam,

Mr. Oliver Sieweke (born September 7th 1992) was employed at Doc Cirrus from 2018 – 2019 as a Javascript Full Stack Developer (Node.js, MongoDB, Knockout.js, YUI). It was my great pleasure to work with Oliver during this time. His extraordinarily rapid grasp of new material allowed him to progress from Junior Developer to Developer after 9 months employment.

In more detail, Oliver implemented, and extended several solutions using almost exclusively Javascript ES5, ES6, ES7:

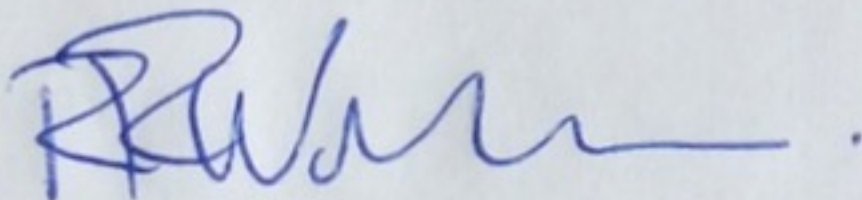

- The development of new Disease Management Programs (eDMP):
 - Setting up editors and validations according to national specifications.
 - Adapting structures for managing, validating and sending eDMP data.
- German Telematik Infrastruktur (TI)
 - Creating a front and back-end for managing configurations.
 - Setting up the communication with the TI-connector
 - Third level support, helping customers to configure and debug the TI set-up.
- Internationalisation and Swiss Version of inSuite:
 - Set up the initial structures and patterns for configuring country licenses, equipping our models with dynamic country-extensions and setting up country specific validations.
 - Catalogue parsing.
 - Initial integration of Swiss Sumex1 Module invoicing module.

From the outset, Oliver's work style was uncomplicated, friendly and communicative. Contact with other sections: QA, PM and Ops were constructive and to the point. Extremely fast in grasping complex subject areas, Oliver achieved deep insights in the shortest amounts of time in order to implement the simplest possible solution. His methodical approach involved first listening, then analysing and understanding, and finally presenting a range of solutions in discussion. His tidy solutions were also always excellently documented in a simple, well, presented format.

He also actively took part in the group further education sessions, disseminating information about new technologies and solutions in the stack among colleagues.

We are sad to see such a talented programmer and well-liked team member leaving us. We wish him the very best for his future and are very appreciative of the time that he spent at Doc Cirrus.

Please contact me if you have any questions about Oliver's work at Doc Cirrus.
